TED TALK

A Pawsitively Exciting Update on FROM CEO (Chief Excitement Officer) Teddy Bier!

Guess who graduated from obedience school? ME!!! I did! The Boss said I could have gotten a first-place ribbon if she had only reminded me that three minutes is a loooooong time when she tells me to stay. Silly Boss. But the judges said I aced almost all the other parts!

So, what should I do with my new certification? I'm sure I can get any job I want now! Don't get me wrong, I love being the CEO (Chief Excitement Officer) of Bier Law, but how much excitement needs to be managed at an estate planning law firm?

I took the Boss and Lawyer for a walk down to the ocean and found a possible gig. Something drew me to the Hermosa Fire Department (I could smell the doggie treats a mile away). Not sure why they hid them in the mailbox up high on the wall, but the Lawyer helped me sample the goods. I know I don't have the typical pedigree for the job (or the spots), but I bet I could pull that big truck to a fire better than anyone.

For now, I guess I'll stick with Bier Law and keep you updated on all of my adventures!

You said estate planning can help everyone. How? I'm single, rent a place and don't have kids.

I need to make changes to my Trust, but the attorney who drafted it retired. What do I do?

REPORT: 15 COMMON REASONS TO DO ESTATE PLANNING

You don't have to be a millionaire to benefit from an estate plan. Reasons to create an estate plan are as unique as the individuals who create them. If you own a home, have minor children and/or grandchildren, grown children in their own marriages, have been divorced, own a business, or expect to receive an inheritance of your own, you need to take action now.

Here are the common reasons you need to not only build and protect your hard-earned money but transfer it with as little depletion and expense as possible.

Jill Love, MBA, MA Senior Care Consultant / Aging Life Care Manager Peters & Love

What do you do?

I work with older adults and their families to navigate the world of senior care. Whether that's responding to a health crisis, planning to stay at home safely, or evaluating long-term care options, I am honored to guide families to make good decisions based on their specific needs and preferences.

What's the best part of your job?

It is a privilege to join a person's care team and honor their values and priorities, even as their care needs progress. I often start working with families during a vulnerable time of transition, and my favorite thing is to reduce family stress and bring peace of mind.

What's the most common misconception people have about your industry?

Many people underestimate the cost of care or think that Medicare will cover care-related services needed in later life. While Medicare can cover some services, most of the financial responsibility rests on older adults. I can help families utilize their own resources wisely to select appropriate care now as well as plan for future needs.

What would people be surprised to learn about you?

From a very early age, my sisters and I would sing and play the piano for our church, and music became a lifelong passion. Though I rarely sing or play these days, music has incredible power to energize me, calm me, or evoke wonderful memories from my life.

What's your favorite local restaurant?

Good Stuff Redondo Beach has a special place in my heart. Whenever our Saturday schedule allows, we go to breakfast, followed by a walk along the beach. We've been doing this since I was pregnant with my first (who is now 10), and I hope to keep this tradition going!
